Whip

It didn't happen very often.

Personal and raw, it wasn't meant for their eyes.

It always happened when they shared a room, their seclusion away from the rest.

They wouldn't understand, and quite frankly Elias didn't want them to.

It wasn't meant for them, just for him.

The need and want had to come out somewhere, and when it couldn't be with his intended, he turned elsewhere.

Elias looked up at Henkka, eying the thick whip in his hand and shuddering in anticipation.

Soon all he would hear is the crack of the whip.

And that was fine by Elias.
